Supersonic Ticket Sales: Additional Capacity Release Due to Strong Demand

Perthshire Big Tree Country, organisers of The Enchanted Forest, have announced they are releasing additional tickets for shows taking place between Monday 20th October and Thursday 23rd October due to a surge in demand for tickets for the event which starts tonight.

The year's theme, The Enchanted Forest: A Journey Through Space, has proved so popular with the general public, the decision to release additional tickets for sale to cope with demand, is a first in the show's seven year history.

Hamish Murray, chair of the steering group for the Enchanted Forest 2008 commented, "Demand for tickets this week has been growing and it looks likely that we could sell out the whole seventeen nights by Sunday evening. We want as many people to enjoy The Enchanted Forest experience as possible and so a decision to release additional tickets to extend our capacity became imperative."

Perthshire Big Tree Country are expecting the additional tickets to be snapped up quickly despite recent reports suggesting the Scottish economy is on the brink of recession.

The show launched earlier this week to a special preview audience which included the Environment Minister Michael Russell, news journalist Lesley Riddoch and the current Miss Scotland, Stephanie Willemse.
